OUT OF PORT ARTHUR. (By wireless telephone, via the City Hall Tower.)

PORT ARTHIER, July 24.—We struck two mines in coming into the city, but they were salted and didn't amount to much.

Anybody says rice and chop-seny are good to est all the time makes a mistake, we'd rather have some of Kirkwood's buttermik and sweet potatoe pie.

When we went to the postoffice to ask at the general delivery for our mail, we found that they general was out trying to head off the Jas.

The only general we found was General Humdity, and we felt like wearing one of those three-days we found that twe wore to Beach Park last summer, and got caught in the rain with.

While we were standing at the delivery window trying to tell the clerk what we were the over our head and dented our tourist hat. Nobody paid any attention to the shell. This surprised us, and we asked the clerk why that was that "Scattersweisterhoff babben zer hogsterovitchstopf tent zer kopperkettle-disjoff," he replied.

"Oh, that is different," we said, in very good English.

good English.

Imong our mail was a letter from Harry, niem. It read in part:

"Having nothing to do, I will now write; having nothing to say, I will now colect."

Another letter came from Secretary Moore, of the Olympia Club. He invited us to spend a few days with the club at their camp this summer.

The other letters contained bills from various persons, all of which we placed on file, after making a determination to pay every one of them when our ship got home.

Then a wireless cablegram from the got home.

Then a wireless cablegram from the office stated:

"Come home at once. We need you. They are going to select a new Chief of Police, and the presidential campaign is on. Cut out the war. We have got to lick Teddy, or we'll have a war on our own hams."

on. Cut out the war. We have got to lick Teddy, or we'll have a war on our own hams."

If we could only get home, we'd come quick, but a Chinese junk is not as seaworthy as we would like a boat to be, and we don't think we could get passage on the Siberlan Railway just at this time. We have no automobile or roller skates nor any balloons, so we can't see how we are to cross the angry waves.

Nobody wants to get away from these awful shells and torpedoes and things any more than we do, but until Admiras any more than we do, but until Admiras Retchemifgencansky relieves Fort Arthur we expect to be bettled up just as tight as Pabst's blue ribbon.

"What are those streets all torn up like this for?" we asked a policeman,

"Ralskatsky gazzolorunoskoff," he said.
"Oh, an underground railway, chi" we replied.

Then we understood that their besieged city was on the alert, and that feetling that the inevitable result would be occupation by the Japs, they were digging an underground passage far out into the bay.

When the Japs come in the citzens will go out into this underground and underwater passage, float to the top and escape by swimming away, while they are being searched for in the city.

It'll take the Japs a long time to get in, but when they do they will find the inhabitants among the missing.

It we can make our occape, disguised as a Canaman, on a junk, we will come home at once.

Short Talks To Advertisers.

Stated in a very few words, the object of advertising is to force business. If a shoe merchant had his shelves full of shoes and did not advertise them for sale, he would sell some of them anyway to his old customers and to persons who happened to drop in. For convenience, we will call that his normal sale. But in this day of activity and competition and with the modern methods of forcing trade, it would be impossible for that merchant who was satisfied with his normal trade to even hold his own. His neighbors who were practicing force methods all around him, would soon diminish even his normal trade. The same principle holds good as to summer trade. Because trade slows down naturally in the heated season, why sit still and be satisfied with normal conditions. Trade can be forced in summer as surely as it can in winter. Returns probably are not as great, but trade can easily be forced above normal in the summer. Tee-Dee Want Ads are cheap, but they are the greatest trade-forcers Richmond has ever known. Try them this summer.
